

AEP National Forum , States of Change: New Leadership in Arts and Education
Washington, D.C., April 9-10, 2010

Don't Worry, I Got It: The Shape of Shared Leadership for a New Decade
Cynthia Weiss and Shawn Renee Lent

Columbia COLLEGE CHICAGO
INNOVATION IN THE VISUAL, PERFORMING, MEDIA, AND COMMUNICATION ARTS

Photo Credits: Joel Wanek, Guillermo Delgado and Suree Towfighnia

Columbia College Chicago – Center for Community Arts Partnerships
Project AIM (Arts Integration Mentorship)
Colum.edu/ccap/Programs/Project_AIM

AIMprint: New Relationships in the Arts and Learning
Co-edited by Cynthia Weiss and Amanda Leigh Lichtenstein
Colum.edu/AIMprint

Chicago Arts Educator Forum
CapeWeb.org/caef

Cynthia Weiss
cweiss@colum.edu

Shawn Renee Lent
slent@colum.edu

Please Tweet your ideas,
comments, questions,
pics, revelations and notes from this session.

Be sure to include the hashtag #aep in your Tweets and TwitPics.

To read our collective notes, log into Twitter and search for #aep using the search bar on the right-hand side.

Tammy Erickson's blog for Harvard Business Review online, including the following relevant articles:

- "Predictions for 2010: Five Changes in the Way We Work"
- "Why Generation X Has the Leaders We Need Now"
- "What Are They Thinking?: The Other Four Generations—What Generation X'ers Should Know About their Colleagues"
- "Judo Management: Making the Most of Generational Traits"

The 20 under 40 Project: Re-Inventing the Arts and Arts Education for the 21st Century, 20under40.org

"Trading Power: 18 Interviews with Philanthropic Leaders Who Talk What the Next Generation Has to Offer in Exchange for What Seasoned Leaders Can Provide" by Ambrose Clancy, free download available online

Claiming Creativity: Art Education in Cultural Transition, International Symposium co-presented by the European League of Institutes of the Arts (ELIA) and Columbia College Chicago, April 20-24, 2010, ClaimingCreativity.com