What brought us together?

Ensuring the Arts for

Any Given Child

What brought us together?

Kennedy Center's Ensuring the Arts for Any Given Child

- Began in Sacramento in 2009; now in 27 communities nationally
- Community Investment in Arts Education - cross section of representative stakeholders beyond arts education community
- Facilitation of locally-owned decision-making
- Focus on Data and Strategy

What brought us together?

What brought us together?

DATA COLLECTION INCLUDES:

Surveys of arts and classroom teachers and school district leadership

Arts “Mapping Tool” for each school with principal survey

Surveys of arts organizations and artists

What brought us together?

Kennedy Center's Ensuing the Arts for Any Given Child Challenges

- Communities approached data collection differently - made it difficult for Kennedy Center to understand what's happening across communities
- Capacity to consistently and accurately collect data in communities varied
- No understanding of the complexity of what is going on in various communities
- No way to do benchmarking or get the big picture across communities
- No good way to understand change over time the why of artlook®

Communities work collaboratively and strategically to deliver high-quality educational experiences to every child, in every grade, in every school.

arts education landscape is complex

Limited understanding of how programs & resources are distributed

Resources expended connecting schools and programs without a proper mechanism

Policy & advocacy limited by lack of local data to fuel decisions Shared vision difficult when not data driven artlook[®] powers positive change

- 1 Drive change on the ground
- 2 Drive systems change
- 3 Unify data
